

TURF OR ARTIFICIAL GRASS

SEASON;
ALL YEAR-ROUND

Question: What are the pros and cons of installing an artificial grass over turf?

Pros:

In today's market, there are lots of different types of artificial grass available, and some of them look remarkably like the real thing.

Artificial lawns work very well where a grass lawn is not suitable due to function, shade, lack of moisture and airflow. This is partly, why they are very popular in urban courtyard gardens.

They are particularly good when used frequently by children and dogs, as they are very hard-wearing and can cope with high levels of foot traffic.

When properly installed by a professional Landscaper, they are very low maintenance – requiring just brushing over / hosing down to keep them clear of dirt and debris.

They feel different – many of them have a carpet-like feel. This is a subjective opinion so might also be considered a con.

They can be walked over any time of year without worrying about muddy feet.

Cons:

They are more expensive to install than a real lawn. A properly installed artificial lawn has a free draining sub-base below, rather like a new patio. Although artificial grass prices have fallen over the last few years, it is still many times more expensive to buy than real grass.

They are not good for the local habitat such as worms.

They don't last for ever, but most of them will last for a good number of years, and most of them come with guarantees, typically of 8 years or so.

They feel different – many of them have a carpet-like feel.

Although many versions remarkably resemble the real thing, some people might not be keen on the artificial appearance.

Many people simply prefer a natural product in the garden, and the smell of a freshly mowed lawn.
